RANDY CONSTANT,            )
                                )
Defendant.                 )

SENTENCING STIPULATIONS

For the relevant period, it is reasonable to assume that non-GMO corn could have been sold for approximately 43 percent of the price of organic corn and non-GMO beans could have been sold for approximately 56 percent of the price of organic beans. The grain sold to or through Constant was most frequently used as animal feed, primarily for chickens and cattle.
